

A Little Off-Kelter: ...the parenting years

Nod sympathetically if youve ever...
...extracted a gum wrapper from a toddlers nostril, but sought medical treatment when it came to a piece of a colored pencil lodged deeply into an ear canal.
...punished a child because he wouldnt stop taunting his brother with a Peter Frampton album....played a rousing game of What thats funky smell? only to discover what might be a petrifying bologna sandwich behind the recliner. ...needed a prescription for a tranquilizer when your firstborn started driving. ...spent any amount of time trying to describe why a Sleestack scared you, why you wanted to marry the Fonz, and who Mork from Ork was. ...installed a security system to keep a three-year old from going on the lam with his beagle, and pondered if it were possible that both of your children were reincarnates of Harry Houdini. ...wondered how a child who once emitted the sweet scent of newborn now puts off an odor that could make a skunk feel inadequate. ...ever rambled incoherently, These kids are going to drive me to drinking, or something about a frontal lobotomy. If you nodded like a bobblehead, chances are youre a parent - or youve got some really strange hobbies. A Little Off-Kelter...the parenting years is a collection of forty columns that originally ran in print. (Hey, the compilation thing worked for Ronco and K-tel, didnt it?) Whether the kids are underfoot or have flown the nest, moms and dads alike will relate to these humorous tales of woe and wonderment.
